

Scientia

Advisors:neurostimulation technology could supplant drugs for certain conditions

A Scientia Advisors study suggests that neurostimulation technologies have fewer side effects and could help cut health care costs by doing away with the need for lifelong drug regimens.