

A Look Back at New Cambridge Observer for 2010.

Here's a summary, compiled by the stats helper monkeys at WordPress.com, who mulled over how this blog did in 2010. Five thousand views... Thanks, wordpress, readers, and the Boston Globe! I promise to be more diligent in 2011.

Art of Decay: Where Do We Go From Here?

In pondering the curators' decisions to highlight these artists, I can't help but conclude that they're making a statement about the current state of civilization, politics, and art. But I ask, where do we go from here?

Window Shopping at Anthropologie, H Square

Anthropologie, located at 48 Brattle St, Cambridge, MA has taken over the old Design Research building—which has sat almost empty for over a year since Crate and Barrel moved out. The store carries an enticing array of clothing, jewelry, shoes, boots and bags—most items are a bit ornate for my simple tastes but definitely worth a visit if only to see the store's beautiful and creative arrangements of merchandise.

Love and Other Drugs: Funny but Difficult

But while the is full of sex scenes and Viagra jokes, don't be fooled: it's funny and enjoyable but deals with difficult and provocative themes.

Cambridge Community TV Day is 9-22-10

To celebrate CCTV day on Sept 22, 2010, Cambridge Community Television will be videotaping in Harvard, Porter and Lechmere Squares, then showing the results on TV that evening.